Investment involves risks, including the loss of principal. The price of units or shares of the Fund may go up as well as down. Past performance is not indicative of future results. The value of the Fund can be extremely volatile and could go down substantially within a short period of time. You should read the Fund's Placing Memorandum or Explanatory Memorandum and Product Key Facts Statement for details, including risk factors. Investors should not base investment decisions on this marketing material alone. Please note:

- ChinaAMC Global Investment Grade Bond Fund (the "Fund") seeks to provide Unitholders with long term capital growth primarily through investing in investment grade fixed income and debt instruments in markets worldwide.
- The Fund's investment may be denominated and a unit class may be designated in a currency other than its base currency. The NAV of the Fund may be affected unfavourably by exchange rates and by changes in exchange rate control.
- Investment in debt instruments involves credit/counterparty risk, interest rate risk, volatility and liquidity risk, credit/downgrading risk, sovereign debt risk, valuation risk, credit rating risk, credit rating agency risk and risks associated with collateralized and/or securities products.
- The Fund may invest in convertible bonds which are a hybrid between debt and equity. Convertibles will be exposed to equity movement and greater volatility than straight bond investments.
- Debt instruments with loss-absorption features are subject to the risk of being written down or converted to ordinary shares upon the occurrence of certain pre-defined trigger events, which are complex and difficult to predict and may result in a significant or total reduction in the value of such instruments.
- The Fund may invest in urban investment bonds which are typically not guaranteed by Chinese central or local governments. In the event of default, the Fund could suffer substantial loss.
- The Fund may enter into sale and repurchase transactions and may suffer loss in the event of counterparty's failure.
- Investment in emerging markets (including the PRC) may involve increased risks and special considerations, such as liquidity risks, currency risks/control, political and economic uncertainties, legal and taxation risks, settlement risks, custody risk and high volatility.
- The Fund's investment may be concentrated in a jurisdiction or region. The value of the Fund may be more volatile than that of a fund having a more diverse portfolio of investments.
- The Fund may acquire FDI's for hedging purpose, which involves volatility risk, credit risk, liquidity risk, management risk, valuation risk, counterparty risk and OTC transaction risk. In adverse situations, such hedging may become ineffective and/or cause the Fund to suffer significant loss.
- There is no guarantee that the hedging instruments will be available or the hedging techniques will be effective for a hedged class. Hedging can limit potential gains of a hedged class.
- RMB is not freely convertible and is subject to exchange controls and restrictions. Any depreciation of RMB could adversely affect the value of investors' investments in the Fund. Payment of redemptions and/or dividend in RMB may be delayed due to exchange controls and restrictions.

▲ Manager's Comment

In August, the global market opened higher and closed lower, and the market was worried about the stickiness of inflation in the service industry. Since the middle of the month, the Federal Reserve has continuously released hawkish signals, and at the end of the month, the central bank's annualization emphasized its determination to fight inflation. The U.S. bond yield curve rose sharply in the month as a whole, with the 2-year and 10-year yields both rising by more than 50bp in a single month, maintaining a deep inversion. Most of the global credit spreads narrowed first and then widened. Emerging markets outperformed the US dollar and outperformed Europe. Among them, Chinese capital performed relatively ahead. Investment grade continued to be well supported with the expansion of the Sino-US interest rate spread. High-yield real estate in the second half of month finally ushered in a rebound. For portfolio strategy, the high interest rate hedging ratio is still maintained, and some high-quality newly issued bonds in Europe and the United States are supplemented.
