▲ Manager's Comment

Global financial markets extended their rally in August 2025, buoyed by dovish signals from central banks, more muted concerns around tariffs, resilient corporate earnings, and continued optimism around AI. Major indices across developed markets posted solid gains, with the S&P 500, Nasdaq, and FTSE 100 etc. reaching fresh record highs. Investor sentiment was further supported by expectations of rate cuts, particularly in the U.S., following the Federal Reserve's Jackson Hole Symposium.

U.S. equities advanced, with the S&P 500 gaining 2.0% over the month. The rally was driven by strong Q2 earnings—particularly in tech and financials—and optimism around potential Fed rate cuts. However, economic data pointed to a cooling labour market: July nonfarm payrolls rose by just 73k, well below expectations, and prior months were revised sharply lower. The unemployment rate ticked up to 4.2%, and labour force participation declined. Inflation remained elevated, with core CPI rising to 3.1% YoY in July. Treasury yields steepened given concerns on fiscal spending, and the dollar weakened modestly.

Eurozone equities posted modest gains, supported by stable inflation and improving manufacturing activity. Headline inflation edged up to 2.1% YoY in August, slightly above the ECB's target, while core inflation held steady at 2.3%. Services inflation eased slightly, providing reassurance to policymakers. The ECB maintained its policy rate and is expected to hold steady in September. Political uncertainty in France weighed on local markets, but broader European indices benefited from resilient PMI data and easing trade tensions with the U.S.

Asian markets saw broad-based gains. Chinese equities rose strongly, supported by progress in U.S.-China trade talks and resumed AI-chip exports. Japan's market also rallied in the month following a favorable trade deal with the U.S., boosting exporters and tech stocks. South Korea's market ended lower as concerns grew over potential policy changes regarding tax reforms. Taiwan posted modest gains, driven by tech momentum and favorable global demand.

In August, equity markets were positive. In U.S. dollar terms, the MSCI ACWI and World rose by +2.52% and +2.64%, respectively. Broad Emerging Markets, which added +1.46%, underperformed Developed Markets. Latam was the best performing region, which saw a positive performance of +8.30%, led by Brazil. Japan also posted solid performance of +7.03%. Canada was positive with a return of +5.67%. Europe gained +3.63%, and S&P 500 gained +2.03%. Asia Pacific ex Japan returned +1.64%, led by China.

Fixed income markets were positive as well in August. The US 10-year Treasuries yields slightly decreased and ended the month at 4.22%. Global treasuries and investment-grade credits are positive with the FTSE World Government Bond Index and the Bloomberg Global Aggregate - Corporate Index returning +1.36% and +1.39%, respectively. More riskier segments – high yields credits outperformed with Global High Yields gaining +1.53%.

In FX, major currencies strengthened against the U.S. dollar, including JPY (+2.50%), EUR(+2.27%), and GBP (+2.09%).

The Fund saw a positive gross total return over August 2025, with contributions from both fixed income and equities. Approximately 21% of the portfolio was invested in equities, 64% in fixed income and the rest in cash and equivalents at month end. The largest contributor to returns was the allocation to US Bonds, which represented the largest portfolio holding on average over the month. North American Equities and Asia Pacific ex Japan Equities contributed meaningfully. Other portfolio holdings delivered positive contributions as well.
